

General Principle 8(b)

The production of thyroxine in mammals is controlled by the hormone TSH. Thyroxine controls metabolic rate in body cells and has a negative feedback effect on gland X.

The diagram below shows the relationship between TSH and thyroxine production.

Name gland X.

1

Gland X is the PITUITARY.

Some incorrect spellings accepted included: PITUATIRY PITUITORY PITUITRY.