Neither that of Pallas Athene, nor that of Envy was able to find fault in the piece of work: the golden-haired warrior goddess was jealous by the success and ripped up the cloth embroidered with heavenly crime.

And immediately the hair was touched by the horrible magic potion to fall out, and with it both her nose and her eyes, and her head became smaller; also the her whole body became small: on the side of her body in place of her legs thin fingers were attached, her stomach took over the rest, from which however she let out thread and the spider practiced her previous skill of spinning.
