12.	From the extract we can see how John and Maggie stick up for each other when Granny attacks John's gift to Maggie. Elsewhere in the play we can see how John and Maggie help each other but still go back to loving each other.
	From the extract we see how Granny is critical of the red hat John bought Maggie. Maggie then sticks up for John when she says, "Aw shut up Granny! Ye're spoilin' it on me!" This conveys Maggie's appreciation of the gift and her love for John by sticking up for him.
	From elsewhere we see John and Maggie arguing about money when Maggie asks "Who earned that money? You or me?" This quote conveys how even though John is the man of the house Maggie bringing in the money, she isn't scared to fight back with John because she knows nothing will happen due to their love. Maggie asks John who brought the money into the family "You or me?" and in fact it was Maggie. Traditionally bringing money into a family was the man's job, not the woman's.

	Elsewhere in the play we can see John and Maggie arguing again "I'd on idee I wis the bried o this house", here we see John trying to assert his manly dominance over Maggie but she won't have it. The couples love is what allows Maggie the confidence to fight John back from his old fashioned stereotypical male views by believing he is the "heid o this house".
	Finally we can see Lily attacking John and due to Maggie and John's love for one another, Maggie sticks up for him by saying "You leave John alone! He's done his best for us" we can see how after Lily attacks for not being a sufficient provider for the family and Maggie stands up for John by telling Lily "You leave John alone!" This clearly shows how she loves John enough to stick up for him against her own sister.
