For many years, Handwriting has been used to convey words, through which can express our emotions and culture. In the ~~earlier~~ ^{earlier} years mankind used paintings or drawings to ~~express~~ ^{communicate}. And in more modern years, we could send letters which write on a piece of paper to people far away. But as technology has advanced it lead people to stop writing on a pieces of papers, to now, with a single click the letters appear which in my opinion is good, Because does not waste time our time and our energy.

Further more, Our reliance on technology is getting more addictive, ~~even~~ ^{since} everything is almost online e.g shopping, meeting, emails, etc. This mostly affects the younger youth who are still in school; Most of them always rely on their phones to write ~~some things~~, And their hand writing with a pencil/pen is not good. The Schools now ~~teach~~ teach online, leaving every topic online most of which makes it worse as most students don't even think about writing or joining some words, since everything is all online.

And so, even more exams are being taken online, but as it helped us in the past years when there was an outbreak of a virus, a lot of people have been using this kind of way to write exams. Unfortunately cheating will occur in those kind exams, where someone could easily search up an answer.

We have gotten so used to writing on the keyboard that we have forgotten how ~~to~~ all always write when before the internet or keyboard were made.
