	In front of the army were elephants and horsemen. The elephants were driven along a steep narrow path. They arrived at the top top of the Alps on the ninth day. From a certain look out point, from where there was a far and wide view, Hannibal pointed out the valley lying below the mountains in the plain Hannibal pointed out Italy to the soldiers which which was lying below the mountains with fields. The rest would be level or downhill.
	Then the army began to make progress. But the journey was much more difficult than the climb up. For in the melting snow they were sliding about in the smooth ice. Neither bush nor root was round about, nor to be taken to be higher .

	There was a path on which anyone would be able to hold onto with their hands.
	Finally a soldier for no purpose decided to make a road through for horses and men. A huge tree round about was cut down, an enormous pile of wood was made as soon as the wind began to build up strength, the pile set fire to the glowing rock which split apart and vinegar was poured on. In this way the burning <sup>burning</sup> rock was cut cut open with iron tools to make an easier zig zag path to make the slope more manageable so that not only the hills but also the elephants would be able to be led down. manageable, so that the so that
