

Candidate 5 – Buddhism (Question 2)

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION		DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
2.	The three markers of existence are known to comprise of Anicca, Anatta and Dukkha. It has been argued that they are the most significant of all beliefs of Buddhism, this essay will discuss if that is really the case.
	The first mark of existence, Anicca, is the doctrine of impermanence, it expresses the concept of constant change, that nothing ever stays the same. Some changes in life occur really slowly, like rocks changing shape through the process of erosion, whereas other changes happen very quickly	K

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
like nothing fast. The concept of Anicca is very hard for many Buddhists to understand for the illusion of permanence is so strong and to convincing. A consequence of this illusion of permanence is that many Buddhists will try to impermanent experiences to bring them happiness, however nothing we last to so being so caught up in impermanence ultimately leads to suffering. A strength of Anicca as a belief in Buddhism is to in accepting that nothing lasts can bring great comfort to Buddhists as they are given	K A K

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
	A
of an the impermanent / non existent self is that you can move forward in a positive direction without unskillful actions like pride and regret holding you back. ✓ Overall, the three marks of existence is a core belief which underpins some very key concepts which Buddhists must understand to reach enlightenment. The three marks of existence are important, but they are not the most significant of all Buddhist beliefs for they are overshadowed by the end goal of Nibbana, which is ultimately more important; the three marks of

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION		DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
	* understand existence are ultimately stepping stones of knowledge to reach / * enlightenment, not the most important factor in the journey.	E
	The belief of Nibbana is the awakening to the true nature of life, allowing Buddhists to become one with reality.	K
	Nibbana puts end to all suffering, but it is a difficult concept to describe for it is not not a spiritual experience outside the realm of words.	K
	The quotation "who can trace the invisible path of the man who soars in the sky of liberation can be used to understand Nibbana as a belief."

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN

everyone aspires to one day reach. However, it is not an easy process to aspire to: a weakening of Nibbana as a belief is that it is a long enduring process to achieve, which can be a real test of faith for many people as they fear they will never reach it. Despite this however, it still remains the most central belief to Buddhists and, even if they're not looking to reach Nibbana in this lifetime, it will always play on the mind as the end goal.

Samsara is the cycle of birth, life/death and rebirth which all Buddhists believe they evolve.

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
	Closely linked with the belief of kamma, it is best expressed in the art of the wheel of life which depicts all the different realms of reincarnation such as humans, animals and the realm of hungry ghosts. The significant relationship between kamma and samsara is that your actions which create your kamma in this life can have great influence on your samsara. An implication of this is that Buddhists can look to act more skillfully, treating others with kindness to improve their time reincarnation in their next life. The relationship between kamma and samsara is significant as it can give Buddhists the strength

