	Part B - Morality and Relationships - Section 2
24.	One traditional gender role is that Men are expected to be the provider in a household. They are expected to look masculine, muscular, smart, well put together. Men are often associated with being aggressive and dominant. No-one expects Men to talk about their emotions and show their feelings especially if that's with a female partner. Another traditional gender role is that females are expected to be stay at home mums who cook and clean and take care of the kids and the household. They are expected to look slim and beautiful, small and delicate with unrealistic figures. Women are associated with coming across^{being} as emotional and extremely fragile and seen as the submissive partner in a relationship.
25.	Someone might say that consent is essential in sexual relationships as if a partner does not consent there are then issues looking into sexual assault and even rape. If someone is

	not consenting then they are not expressing verbally and confirming that they are okay with their actions and the act about to be carried out. Consenting means that there is proof verbally not just through actions that a person feels comfortable and safe. Consent shows communication.
26.	One Moral issue raised by inequality is mental damage. If there is an inequality affecting a person it could harm them mentally. For example if someone who is black faces discrimination or a social inequality they may start to think there is something wrong with who they are ^{creating} creating insecurities. Another Moral issue raised by inequality is it can stunt opportunities and people's goals. If there is an inequality in the workplace it could affect different genders opportunities. For example if a woman is told she can't do a job because of her gender she may give up the opportunity she had and settle for less.
27.	One religious views on equality is the christian viewpoint. the Most christians believe that everyone is equal. under C They also believe God

created everyone on earth to be equal. He loves every human no matter what. It doesn't matter what they have done or ~~their~~ ^{their} gender or sexuality everyone to God is equal. For example the bible says "... Nor Jew Nor gentile for God loves everyone." This shows equality.

I agree that there is no need to have rules about sexual relationships as ~~far~~ as long as people are in a happy relationship why does it matter what they do or what happens. I don't believe there should be rules about sex before marriage or about when people decide to do things. I think it is up to the people who are involved in the relationship to determine what "rules" they want if any. ~~but I don't~~ I don't believe society or anyone else should be creating rules for others and their relationships.

However I disagree that there is no need to have rules about sexual relationships as I think age is important to have set rules on. If someone is of the age of 16 they can legally consent and take part in intercourse. I also believe having rules

	about consent is really important so that couples can communicate about their wants and needs. I think there should also be rules about using contraception and protection unless you are trying for a baby just to help protect people of all ages from diseases and infections. I believe that there should only be rules to keep both parties safe and happy but not to dictate what they do and when under what circumstance.
	Part C - The problem of Suffering and evil - Section 3
50.	People have different explanations of suffering and evil as some may believe it is God who controls suffering and evil. Some may also believe that humans are the root cause of suffering and evil. Some could say that suffering and evil was here as long as earth has been here, if not longer. People could say that suffering is all about determinism it is already decided for you and nothing can stop it.
51a.	Some people might say suffering and evil challenge the nature of God as good is meant to be
