4.	One feature of First Past the Post (FPTP) is that it is simple to use. Voters must simply mark an 'X' in their desired candidate's box on the ballot paper and submit their vote. For example, in 2019 the Conservatives won the General Election due to having the most seats MP's.
	Another feature of FPTP is that it has worked for many years. This is because known to be true because General Elections have the highest turnout rates of all elections. For example, in 2019 67% was the turnout rate of the General Election, over 2/3 of people. Also, in 2011 when asked in a referendum if FPTP should be replaced voters said 'NO'.
	FPTP is also fair to voters. This is because the candidate and party with the most votes wins. This means majority of voters have an MP of the they elected. For example, Stewart McDonald won the Glasgow South seat in 2019 with the most votes of over 22000 votes.

5.	One way individuals can participate in election campaigns is by canvassing. There are two types of canvassing: door-to-door and telephone.
	Door-to-door canvassing is when people who support a particular party go round the community knocking people's doors to get generate support for their party and to pers educate undecided voters on why their party's

	Another way individuals can participate in

	Election campaigns is by setting up stalls

	Q6. The Prime Minister is very powerful because he has the ability to hire and fire individuals of government. This means the Prime Minister can elect people to Cabinet and give is in control of appointing roles within their cabinet. This makes the Prime Minister (PM) powerful because they are able to surround themselves with people who support them and agree with their ideas. For example, in October 2022 Rishi Sunak appointed Jeremy Hunt to Chancellor and also fired Zak Adnan Zakhami in 2023 for not paying his taxes.

Ch. UK when meeting these global leaders, this ability makes the PM very powerful because he can make decisions with world leaders that will benefit the UK. For example, at the G20 summit, Rishi Sunak met with the USA president Joe Biden and discussed a united plan for how the UK & USA will face Russia & support Ukraine.

A final reason why the PM is very powerful is because they have the ability to make laws & guide policy direction. This means the PM can make decisions that impact the entire UK. This makes the PM very powerful because they are able to make laws as direct orders unlike the US president who must have someone put the Bill to Congress. For example, Rishi Sunak used his power of policy direction and law making when he proposed that maths be made a compulsory subject on English pupils until the age of 18.

This can be linked to Source 2 where the table shows that a combined 75% of people either strongly agree or agree that there should 'be improved mental health services for young people.' 75% is a significant amount of people who is support the notion of Gillian Garfield.

This can be linked to source 7 where it shows 66% of people to be in agreement with Gillian Garfield. Again, almost 2/3 of youth agree with Gillian which is why I chose Option 1.

iii)	I could have chosen Option 2 however I did not because it is wrong as the Jake Holland says in Source 1, "Currently, there are too few opportunities for school leavers." This statement can be proven wrong because in Source 3 it says, 'Young people in the local area have a wide range of opportunities when they leave school.' This can be linked to further in Source 3 where it says, "Southside Central has one of the lowest youth unemployment rates in the country." This is why I did not choose Option 2, because of the evidence provided and of statements between sources not agreeing.

One consequence of crime on the victim is loss of life or medical complications. This means that the crime a victim has experienced has left them dead severely medically impacted and unable to navigate life the way they once could. Sadly, the crime may result in their death. For example, Katie Piper was an acid attack victim from her boy then boyfriend pouring acid on her. As a result of this crime she has has had to undergo countless procedures (around £££) to improve her quality of life.
Another consequence of crime on the victim is severe emotional & mental distress. This is when the crime leaves the victim with extreme anxiety and depression in their daily lives. Such emotions can lead these victims to become isolated and afraid to leave their home. For example, it was found that 71% 71% of victims of the home robberies feared to leave their house, worried

	Moreover, 41% of victims of violent crime fear leaving the home out ^{too} scared of being attacked once again.
12.	One reason why people commit crime as a result of social causes is due to alcohol. This is when individuals drink alcohol to an excess and become drunk. When drunk, people tend to make poor decisions and can end up making participating in anti-social behaviour and even take risks with the law. Because of this, the effect of alcohol police can often be seen patrolling hotspots for crime on weekends and during high profile events. For example, it was found that 41% 41% of prisoners were drunk at the time of arrest. A huge amount, highlighting the impact alcohol has on people's decisions.
	Another reason why people commit crime as a result of social causes is because of the ^{'nurture'} 'nature' theory. This is a theory that ^{'nurture'} 'nature'

If a child is brought up in a neglectful environment and are not taught right from wrong growing up, they may commit crimes due to their personal experience. For example, it was found by Barnardo's charity that children with parents in jail were five times more likely to go on to offend themselves. Moreover, it was found that 65% of boys whose fathers in jail ended up committing offences as well.
13.	One reason why police are not effective at tackling crime is due to their lack of public trust. This means that the people the police work for for and with do not have faith in their abilities and because of this believe they are ineffective. For example, a recent YouGov poll tracker found that nearly half of the public don't have faith in the police. And that figure has been on a decline over the past 3 years from

	the police presence should put people off committing crimes as they know that their actions have consequences. However, due to the police being ineffective, crime rates are on a high because people

It can be concluded because in Source 1 it states, "In June 2020 there, prisons in England and Wales reported 500 confirmed cases." Out of a population of 'over 80,000 prisoners' as stated in Source 1, 500 cases is a small fraction of an amount that could of prisoners affected. This can be linked to Source 3 where it says, '1,783 "likely cases". Once again this figure is not ideal but it is still a small minority of prisoners that are being impacted by the virus, around an '1/8' which is only 12.5%. Once again, a small amount considering the final total population. families It can be concluded that prisoners were able to effectively communicate with prisoners during the COVID-19 lockdown. This notably, large figure is 3/4 of people surveyed. the brings light to the fact that was a negative opinion towards the decision. This is because a strong majority of people disagreed with the decision. - It can be concluded that England and Wales had a fairly lower early release figure compared to other countries. This is because in Source 1 it says, "4,000 prisoners were set to be released in England and Wales." This value could be considered high however it is not as this was a hypothetical value and in reality Source 3 states how many were actually released. This can be linked to Source 3 where it says, "By the end of August 2020, only

To link link again with Source, it shows the highest amount released to be Iran with 88000 and Ethiopia with 4,000, the original release value for England and Wales. A comparable difference can be visible & noticed between England & Wales and other countries. the which is why I have concluded that only a low number of prisoners were released early compared to foreign countries.

For example, it was found that 39% of the global spending was spent by the USA for their military at over the $800 billion being spent to enhance & maintain their military. Another reason why the USA has a military influence on other countries is due to its lead role in NATO and its history for supporting foreign countries in war. This means that the USA play a large part part in the global military organisation and fund them quite a huge amount to remain a military superpower and be able to control huge global military decisions. For example, the USA provides around 16% of NATO funding and as an independent country have they have supported Ukraine the during the war and Israel using their power as a mighty military power.

US citizens also have the ability to elect their leaders who will have an impact on their state and the the entire country. An example of when US citizens exercised their political right to vote was when they elected Joe Biden to office.
	Another political right US citizens have is the right to protest. This is when a large group of people gather at a public place to support or oppose a public governmental topic. 	One reason why some some groups are more socially and economically successful than others is due to education. This means that depending on where you live and your ethnicity, you receive a different quality of education. This causes some groups to be more successful than others because majority of the high paid successful jobs rely on good education. For example, New York schools spend $21000 a year on education while Nevada only spends $7000. Furthermore, a two year attainment gap has been identified through standardised tests between Blacks and Whites. Moreover, it was found that only 1/2 of African

	Another reason why some groups are more socially and economically successful is due to wealth. This means is due to healthcare. This is because some groups have access to better healthcare than others, because the American healthcare system isn't organized like the UK's NHS. This results in the amount of wealth you own impacting the quality of healthcare you receive. For example, the rich afford the healthcare from their wealth and others through employment and insurance. However, the poor rely on Medicaid, a governmental facility, which is not known to be inferior also, as a result of the healthcare organization there is a gap in life expectancy expectancy. African Americans are

	Another reason why some groups are more successful socially and economically than others is due to the USA's the unequal economic system. This means that wealth is not distributed equally among the people causing no more opportunities being available to only the rich. In fact the USA has an GINI rating of 0.48 which means the majority of the wealth is distributed among the rich, leaving causing the rich to get richer and the poor to remain poor. As most opportunities in life are money related the more you have the more successful you are. That is why the economic system of the US impacts how successful certain groups are economically and socially.

	Sheila's statement - can again be supported when she says, "because in source 2 it shows a significant, steady increase in the number of turbines in Andorra. There has been an increase of around 2000 wind turbines. This can be linked to source 3 where Zac says, "Andorra has met its targets for wind turbines, which is great for the environment." This shows that Andorra have been making efforts to improve environmental status. This can be also linked to source 1 where it is says, 'target to have 4000 turbines.' This can be linked to Source 2 where Mustafa says, "Anders and one dying to die air pollution in our cities. More must be done." Highlight that Anders must do more for environmental changes which oppose Sheila's statement.
	Finally, Sheila's statement can be opposed because in Source 3 Aiden says, "Increase in greenhouse gas emissions." Suggests that enough isn't being done in the way of environmental changes which opposes Sheila's view. This can be linked to Source 2 2 where it shows and increase in greenhouse gas emissions over the years.
