

Candidate 1 evidence

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
1.	One emotional need of an individual is security, this is where the individual needs to have a sense of security, whether that be a safe home, and good income or even a secure bond between a child and parent.
2.	Nurture is to do with our environment and people around us and how that can impact and influence your life.
3.	One key concept of a behaviourist approach is that people are born as blank slates and who they become and what they do is based on their interactions and experiences with others.
4.	The psychodynamic approach could help a care worker understand a child's aggressive behaviour as the psychodynamic approach believes we are who we are based on past experiences and our inner

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
4 Continued
5.
6.

thoughts and feelings. This could help a care worker understand the child as they could look into their past experiences or use a method such as shared activities to allow the child to open up about their inner thoughts which could help the care worker understand more about the child.

5. Secondary socialisation is when an individual branches away from their primary socialisation usually family, and they meet new people maybe by going to school and mixing with new peers.

6. A norm is something society finds acceptable, it is deemed normal and no-one would be shocked by this action.

A value is something an individual believes in, something they think is worth their time. These can vary

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
6 continued
7.	from person to person, for example people of different religious backgrounds may value different things. The life chances of an individual can be impacted by discrimination because if they are being discriminated by employers and housing associations this could decrease their chances of finding a job or place to live which can impact their chances of success in life and even impact their mental wellbeing, they may feel worthless if they're being treated like that.
8a).	The first stage of the care planning process is the assessment. This is an extensive look into the service users needs, medical history, family history and background to decide what the plan is going forward to meet the service user's needs.

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
8b.)	One other stage of the care planning process is monitoring, this is where the plan is regularly checked and adapted if the service users needs, wishes or decisions change.
9.	Two principles of the Health and Social Care standards are Be included and well being. Be included states "I receive the correct information at the right time in a way I can understand," this means the service user can be fully involved in their plans and they have a say. Wellbeing states "I am helped and supported to achieve my full potential," this means the service user is given help and support to achieve what they want in life.
10.	The purpose of the Health and Social Care Standards is to ensure service users needs are being met, they are treated with dignity and respect, they are included, their wellbeing is supported,

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
10 continued
	their care they receive is compassionate and their care is responsive when things change. Another purpose is to ensure all care workers know their codes and abide by them and that the service user is priority.
11	Calum's social needs need to be addressed as he has become withdrawn. Ways his needs could be met is the care workers involving him in activities, arranging visits from family and friends, if that isn't possible maybe arrange calls or video calls for him. Also communicate with Calum ask what he would like to do, another option could be finding residents with similar interests that he could bond with.
12	Statutory care is when the care is mandatory, it is government funded, Like the NHS.