

Candidate 4 evidence

11. To what extent was a visit to the amphitheatre more exciting and eventful than a visit to the theatre in Pompeii?

8

You should explain different aspects of a visit to the amphitheatre and the theatre and come to a reasoned conclusion.

OF QUESTION	THIS MARGIN
11	A visit to the amphitheatre was more exciting as you could watch gladiator fights and many people enjoyed the bloody event.
	It was more exciting as you could go to watch executions and see people died which many enjoyed.
	It was more exciting as you could go to see animal hunts where it was man against animal. It was very dramatic and tense.
	It was more exciting as there were more people to make the atmosphere very exciting and tense.

ENTER NUMBER OF QUESTION	DO NOT WRITE IN THIS MARGIN
	It was more exciting as you could go for free and didn't cost you any money. However, theatres were more exciting as sometimes famous plays or actors would come.
	In conclusion, amphitheatres are more exciting than theatres to a large extent. This is because there are very bloody events that the crowd find exciting.
	It was more exciting as sometimes famous gladiators would come. However, it was not more exciting as the events could be very horrible and gruesome.