

National 5 Candidate 2

The evidence and commentary for this candidate were used within the ESOL National 5 and Higher Writing webinar in January 2022.

Writing -Study

Over the last decade people's attitude toward education changed and many educators prefer to teach their students in group because it lead to a larger amount of benefits. However, it is very important for students to share knowledge and information with each other there are few drawback for this kind of work.

Working in group is advantageous to students in a number of ways. As it true that if you work alone you might be able to rise your level of understanding, work in group bring them all to a higher level of knowledge and experience as it is formed of students with different levels of knowledge and understanding and by working together they help each other to overcome their difficulties. For example, students could make Maths easier to understand to their classmates than their teachers.

In addition, groupwork help students to gain other skills beside knowledge such as cooperation, competition and being understanding to others, which makes them more sustain in front of problems and great in teamwork. This aid their communication skills and they eventually makes them good individuals in their society.

Although quite students find groupwork annoying, their complaint is that they want to be alone to concentrate so they do better work, still it is the best for them to learn how to express themselves and show their abilities. In conclusion, I believe that students gain more from groupwork than from work alone. This is evident from the huge benefits that working in the groups provide.