Should Students live with their Parents?

There are one quarter of students in the UK which are ~~living~~ studying at a college or university while living at home with their families. And in this essay I will be writing about the advantages and disadvantages of students living with their families while studying. I will also write a conclusion at the end of this to sum everything up.

Advantages

The advantages of living with your parents while studying are that there is no cost ~~to them~~ what so ever as your parents will pay for the rent and food. You can spend time with your parents and relax while also getting support from them.

There is less stress when living with your parents as you don't have to worry about the rent or any type of cost for food and also is less about making dinner and being alone.

Disadvantages

On the other hand, it can be even less stressful living by yourself as you won't get bothered by your parents and get distracted much by ~~your~~ ~~parents~~ your pets if you have any.

The environment is less distracting while living alone as it is quiet most of the time which helps you relax and concentrate more on your work. By living by yourself you will gain experience on living alone and you will be more used to it which will help you in the future.

Conclusion

To sum everything up we know see both the advantages and the disadvantages to living with your parents and living alone while studying. My recommendation would be that you should live with your parents while Studying because there is much less stress due to the fact that you don't have to worry about the cost of the costs of food and you will always have company with you so you won't feel alone and will always get encouraged by your parents and they will be able to help you with problems.
